

North Central Conference

Boys Basketball Record Book

(updated, Feb. 2020)

History:

The North Central Six athletic conference was organized in 1924 with charter members Algona, Clarion, Eagle Grove, Hampton, Humboldt, and Webster City. In 1934, Iowa Falls joined the league and "six" was dropped from the group's name as there were now seven members of the North Central Conference. Two years later, Clear Lake was added, making the NCC an eight-member league, which it would remain for 58 years, with no changes in membership. In 1992, Bishop Garrigan (Algona) and St. Edmond (Fort Dodge) were added to the membership, making the NCC a ten-team league. In 2014, Bishop Garrigan and Eagle Grove resigned their conference membership, returning the NCC to eight member status.

Initial conference activities appear to have been football, boys basketball and track, and declamatory contests. The first North Central Conference boys basketball championship was won by Webster City in 1925. Champions for each season since then are recorded below. Final standings and stats, making up most of this report, are from this century, only, as the writer began keeping conference stats for boys basketball starting in the 1999-2000 season. It is hoped that any missing information (champions, standings, or stats) might be added as time goes on. Updates to this booklet will be made at least annually.
